

Organizing a Week of Content

Blackboard is organized around a main course menu from which every element of the course is accessible. We recommend breaking each week of content into its own content area within Blackboard's main course menu.

Within the weekly content area, content elements can be inserted as items. Note that each element is labeled according to the week in which it appears. Future weeks should follow a similar ordering of elements, beginning with an overview, followed by lesson content, and the associated learning activities.

Sample Weekly Overview Page

The overview page should include elements that orient students to the purpose and content of the week. A typical weekly overview page might consist of the following:

1. A brief written or video introduction
2. Learning objectives
3. Readings
4. The learning activities due for the week

Calendar Integration for LMS

Blackboard has a course calendar function that can be accessed through Course Tools → Course Calendar. The calendar can be added to the main course menu by clicking Add Menu Item → Tool Link.

Setting due dates on your activities will cause these to show up on the calendar. Due dates can also be added manually to the calendar.
